Client feedback about our field services:

“ When time is against us we need to get to the crux of a claim quickly – to see the whole situation not just part of it. A visit helps us do that, and benefits our MOJ Portal retention rates.

Claims that initially might seem the ones to settle, or conversely defend, can turn out very differently after a visit. A visit helps to glean information about underwriting features and offer the policyholder risk management advice. This can improve the risk for all parties.

Policyholders want their version of events heard. The outcome might be the same, but a visit makes sure that no stone is left unturned. The decision is then made with the full facts, and with the policyholder's buy in. Customer management is key in such a competitive marketplace.

Injury claims can be very emotive, particularly where employees have had life changing injuries. Sometimes policyholders need their hand holding in their hour of need – a skilled investigator can do that, while showing empathy. ”

Technology

We apply market leading technology to improve the customer experience, settle claims faster, inform your risk management strategy and identify fraud.

Notification software

Easy to use for risk managers and safety teams. Tell us about a new claim via our portal. Upload your key data, documents and photographs, straight from your smartphone or PC.

Remote video

A 'virtual visit' using live video streaming with a customer or third party. Used to enhance triage or as an alternative to an physical visit. It helps us reduce claims' life cycles and avoid the cost of a visit if it's not necessary.

Drones

Using drones to capture video and photos to give key stakeholders a birdseye view of the loss. Drone footage adds value to the claim – from a fire ravaged structure that's difficult or unsafe to access, to evidencing the scale of damage following a burst water main.

360 virtual reality

Unmanned aerial vehicles and radio-controlled cars record 360 degree tours of major losses giving you unparalleled visibility of a loss. The footage is then edited to use on a computer or with virtual reality goggles – all within 24 hours of an incident. It's as good as you being there.

Tablet technology

Our liability adjusters use tablets to capture information, prepare reports, take electronic statements and get digital signatures on-site. They can also remotely access all the documents stored on our claims management system.

iSite narrated videos

Using tablets we record and narrate video footage, which clients and brokers can then stream from a secure cloud-based storage site.

iValue artificial intelligence

Using deep learning-based artificial intelligence, our iValue tool reads a flooring type simply through a photograph of the floor, providing an immediate cost for replacement.

Property repair scoping tool

Our validation tool allows detailed repair scopes to be built up by our handlers and adjusters – it's based on real-time costs that would be charged by our contractor network, if we carried out the repairs. It's a great way of challenging the cost of ongoing, or completed repair projects on liability claims.

viaOne portal

An easy-to-use online system, with three key features for the insurer, broker and corporate market. viaOne allows you to view your individual claims in real time, create your own MI reports, and see a dashboard view of your portfolio to help identify trends and inform risk improvement strategies.

Insurer client feedback:

“ It's been great having access to these virtual tours.

They're so easy to use. These tours are the reliable evidence we need to understand and validate our most costly and complex claims. ”

Counter fraud solutions

According to the latest ABI statistics, every five minutes a new insurance fraud is uncovered, that's 300 a day.

We've seen an increasing amount of fraud in liability claims, from manufactured accidents to exaggerated quantum.

The Sedgwick UK liability team saves our clients £10m per year on average, by successfully singling out suspected and proven liability insurance fraud.

We use award-winning technology, which combines machine learning and AI to accelerate the detection of fraudulent behaviours – from claims exaggeration to sophisticated criminal activity. This is fully integrated into our claims management system to automatically ingest and analyse data, and alerts us to suspicious activity as well as providing insight into fraud trends. The screening is discreet and allows us to provide genuine policyholders and third parties with an uninterrupted service.

When a suspect case is identified, it's referred to our team of fraud specialists. They undertake detailed background checks and review the validity of documents and digital metadata to confirm authenticity. Recorded or face-to-face interviews will then be held using conversation based validation technology to get to the bottom of what really happened, leaving no stone unturned.

Case study

Employers liability injury – policyholder fraud

The policyholder ran a firm of mobile caterers where injuries were sustained during a gas explosion.

Our investigations found that while the accident was genuine, the policyholder and her husband aroused suspicions. Close interrogation of the claim and the underwriting records showed that the insurance policy had been taken out online after the explosion had occurred.

The policy was voided and the City of London Police's Insurance Fraud Enforcement Department (IFED) took up the referral. The policyholder subsequently pleaded guilty in court and was sentenced to a 12-month conditional discharge and had to pay costs.

Case study

Employers liability injury – third party fraud

A claim by a bodybuilder, who alleged he suffered a back injury at work was proved fundamentally dishonest when we were able to demonstrate his claim was falsified.

He litigated his claim and sought to recover £150,000 plus costs. The claim was discontinued and he was ordered to pay £35,000 in costs at a subsequent prosecution.

Case study

Product liability – third party fraud

Following an investigation with IFED, a disc jockey from Newcastle, who tried to bully and abuse staff into processing bogus insurance claims, received a 22-month prison sentence.

The claimant had made a false £1,200 product liability claim. The claim was low value which meant it would have been easy to settle, but thanks to our forensic eye for detail and collaboration with other insurers, we were able to prove that he was a serial fraudster.
